In the "State of YO" for 25 Years ...and that's No Jive!

WHAT'S NEXT
MFG., INC.

Dr. Tom Kuhn, a San Francisco dentist, loved wooden yo-yos but couldn't find a really fine one to play with, so he started making some for himself in 1976. The paperboy saw him playing with an early one-piece prototype and said "No Jive - you made that?" Tom thought that would be a good name for his new yo-yo. He made 20 of the original No Jives and hand branded them as Christmas gifts in 1976. The No Jive 3-in-1 Yo-Yo project had begun to take shape and received a boost from NASA when Tom took a briefcase full of yo-yo prototypes to a materials engineer at their Moffet Field facility in Mountain View, and soon thereafter began receiving various space age materials that he tested for an optimum axle material. Ultimately the No Jive 3-in-1 Yo-Yo emerged as the world's first take apart yo-yo with a replaceable wooden axle. The halves could be reversed for a "butterfly style" yo-yo or stacked "piggy back" for an offbeat shaped yo-yo that still worked. People loved them and he began a company called Tom Kuhn Yo-Yos. Along the way he built a 256 lb. exact scaled up replica of the No Jive, that was successfully yo-yoed from a giant crane, and the first ball bearing yo-yo called the SB-2 (Silver Bullet 2), that was taken aboard the Atlantis Space Shuttle. Over the years Tom Kuhn Yo-Yos elevated the yo-yo from a dime store plastic kids toy and served as a benchmark to challenge and stimulate the entire yo-yo industry. Tom received the First D.F. Duncan Industry Excellence Award and was proclaimed the "Father of the Modern Yo-Yo" at the National Yo-Yo Championships in Chico California in 1999.
